

Hong Kong International Literary Festival 香港國際文學節

HKILF 2021 Online Archive Order Form

Our 20th edition theme 'Present Tense/Future Perfect' explored in fiction and non-fiction how the world is responding to issues such as health, inequality and climate change, as well as possible future directions for humanity and the planet. Lynda Gratton and Andrew Scott discussed their latest book, The New Long Life: A Framework for Flourishing in a Changing World, and panels examined issues such as the future of US politics and US-China relations, racism in Asia, the world post-COVID-19, and the future of food. Other highlights included a series of book talks and film screenings featuring local filmmakers, and Bruce Lee's daughter Shannon Lee discussing her book, Be Water My Friend: The Teachings of Bruce Lee. Novelist Romesh Guneskera who took part in the first festival in 2001 had joined us again, and Hong Kong born poet Marilyn Chin and her iconic work, Urban Love Poem closed the Festival with local and international poets reading their own urban love poetry. The Urban Love Poetry event was also a competition that encouraged students to write and submit their own Love Poem, and invited the winners to read aloud their winning entries.

Going virtual has allowed us to bring a wider range of high-profile authors to the festival than ever before. The 2020 International Literary Festival line-up included two 2020 Booker Prize longlisted authors, Colum McCann and C Pam Zhang; Irish Fiction Laureate, Sebastian Barry; Pulitzer Prize winners Jhumpa Lahiri and Jonathan Kaufman; Vera and Shetland crime series author Ann Cleeves; poet Marilyn Chin, editor of The Atlantic David Frum; historians Thant Myint-U, and William Dalrymple; and journalists Ananth Krishnan, Bob Davis and Lingling Wei, and a vibrant group of Hong Kong and regional writers and speakers including Chan Koonchung, Dorothy Tse, Elizabeth Sinn and many more.

Our 20th edition reflects past achievements, celebrates how books bring people together and looks ahead to a range of issues that affect our everyday lives, and this rich archive is available to order in full, in bundles, or individually.
